

John Sandahl – Chief Coaching Officer

CTPC, CPCC

John Sandahl is a certified team and executive coach, change-agent, speaker with years of experience helping teams and their leaders around the country achieve high performance through the power of reflection, conversation and coaching. He serves as Senior Faculty for Team Coaching International and has been delivering front of the room coaching, training and workshops for Over 20 years.

Sample Client experience

John is an expert in creating powerful experiences and he specializes in the unique blend of team coaching work that is required to take good teams and help them become truly exceptional. He has worked with entire companies on these skills but his specialty is senior leadership teams who are learning to make the transition from “doers to leaders” and on a given day he can be found working with teams in very diverse industries: Service and repair enterprises, banking, and Film/TV production, Commercial real estate, NGO’s non-profits, and Governmental agencies. His clients tend to be fast growing entrepreneurial companies whose leadership teams need help in all facets of team performance.

Education and training and experience

John trained and certified with both Team Coaching international and is one of their top trainers and The Coaches Training Institute, the standard-bearers of coach training organizations worldwide where he received the designations CTPC and CPCC. He continues to serve as one of TCI’s lead faculty and trainers.

High performance team expert

In addition to his work in the world of business teams he has sustained a 25-year Ultimate Frisbee (team sport) career and can bring the lessons of high team performance as a member of truly high performing teams. He is a six-time national, four-time world champion as a captain of Team USA. He also coached the US National U20 women’s team three times in the junior world championships in Finland, Vancouver and Germany where they medaled each time.
